TURKEY DAY

To the Editor of the Napanee Express Napanee, Ont.

Dear Mr. Editor:—

At the last meeting of the Town Council the question of the best way to manage and control the Poultry Fair in Napanee, came up for discussion. From the facts brought out in this discussion it appears that there has been considerable dissatisfaction of many of the farmers and producers of poultry about the results they secured when the poultry is marketed.

A few seasons ago Turkey Day was fixed on a day that proved very unsatisfactory for the farmers. It was rainy and mild weather, so that having killed and dressed poultry and brought it to town, it was alleged, whether truly or not, that the buyers, knowing the poultry had to be sold, reduced the prices. Subsequently, some of our enterprising farmers shipped their poultry directly to Montreal and Toronto, with the unfortunate result that after paying the commission on sales, freight, and cost of packing, the net result, per pound, was very small, and it was alleged,
that in some cases, the farmers never got any returns from their shipment, causing a complete loss.

It has been alleged that buyers have gone out into the country, or met loads of produce coming into town, and bargaining for the same, at a price lower than the prevailing price at the market on Turkey Day, which of course, caused dissatisfaction. It is also alleged that farmers who have well cared for and properly fattened and carefully dressed poultry do not get the advantage they should, when there is a common price paid for all kinds of poultry, some of which is in a very unsatisfactory condition.

Several plans have been suggested to overcome these difficulties and secure for our farming community, with whose welfare the interests of the town are very closely associated, the very best prices that can be obtained for their poultry this fall. The following suggestions have been made:

1. That the farmers be requested not to bargain or contract in advance for their poultry.

2. That all loads of poultry, brought into Napanee, to report at the market, and there be opened and inspected by the buyers, who will be in a position to pay in competition,
the highest possible price for a good class of Turkeys, Fowl, Ducks, or Geese, as the case may be, and that the buyers be forced to come to the market, and not be allowed to improperly contract with the buyers as they are coming into town.

It is also suggested that all weighing scales used for the fair should be properly tested before they are used.

I am writing this letter so that the farming community and the District Agricultural Associations and Societies throughout the county, who use

MUSICALS IN NAPANEE

Helen VanLuven, Pianist and Dramatic Soprano, and Elizabeth VanLuven, Violiniste and Soprano, will give a recital in the town hall, on Friday evening, September 15th, at 8 o'clock. The entire proceeds will be applied to the Prisoners-of-War Fund of the Red Cross Society.

The following are clippings from the Toronto and Buffalo papers:

"At the recital given recently in Toronto by Helen VanLuven, the opening number, a Valse by Strauss Rive King, was exceedingly interesting. The Sextette from Lucia and the Hungarian Rhapsody displayed a breadth of style, full round tone and adequate technic. Pleasing assistance was given by Elizabeth VanLuven, Violiniste, who played with sureness and without affectation and possesses technical skill equal to the demands made upon it.—Sunday World."

"Helen VanLuven, Pianiste, was heard at the Associated Studio on Saturday afternoon in a short and interesting programme. The event was the debut of Miss VanLuven in Toronto musical circles, and on that occasion she scored a genuine success as a pianiste. She was ably assisted by Miss Elizabeth VanLuven, violiniste.—Mail and Empire."

"An audience of 1200 people attended the splendid concert given by the Plymouth Orchestral Society at Plymouth Methodist Church on Thursday evening. Mrs. A. W. Schuler, soprano, and Miss Helen VanLuven, a gifted pianist from Toronto, were the soloists. The orchestra, numbering 100 pieces, under the able direction of its conductor, Ross Alf. Hunter, has done fine work this winter. . . . Miss VanLuven proved herself a pianiste of admirable equipment; the "Valse" Strauss-Rive-King being brilliantly played. The "sextette" from "Lucia" for left hand only, and the Hungarian Rhapsody No. 5, by Liszt, further disclosed her virtuosity and prodigious technical fluency. . . . She was recalled for extra numbers.—Buffalo Sunday Courier."

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—In answer to a communication from the Interna-

the British answer, the Foreign Office Friday stated its position on the question of reprisals.

The Red Cross had urged against

The British Government answers by referring to "outrages" which have put such a strain on the patient British people as to raise the question of reprisals.

The reply concludes: "His Majesty's Government will readily respond to the appeal, being confident that the neutral powers and the International Committee will recognize that the demands for reprisals grows in volume and urgency with the recurrence of abuses, and that the surest means of avoiding reprisals is the abandonment of the policy inspiring them."

Sept. 5, via London.—An opportunity offered by the Greeks, within guns, of a large fleet of the Greeks, Premier Zaimis has been what amounts to dictatorial powers. All readiness for the final act of neutrality of Greece.

A people of Athens were amused at the spectacle of the Greek police and secret police men agents about the city, a profound change of affairs was effected. Premier Zaimis is now in a position of the whole country embarrassed by any dissimilar opinion or hostile control. The first step of full powers in the Premier Zaimis was taken to make public gatherings today. The arrangement whereby the issuance of dissolving the now adjournment and calling new elections is postponed indefinitely, actually of any parliamentary interference with the policy of the government. Finally, the day requested and renounced support of the Venizelos party and opposed to Venizelos, the present temporary political representative of completing the necessities which may be demanded by the ministry behind Greece may now find an overnight at the bidding individual, who is Constantine nor former Venizelos.

The Allies are rapidly expelling the Greeks and Piraeus of Austrian agents.

RAID COST TWO ZEPPELINS.

Press Bureau Says One Raider Was Seriously Damaged.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—An official statement, issued by the German admiralty Monday telling of the zeppelin raid on the southeastern counties of England last Sunday night, was received Monday. It said:

"During the night of Sept. 2 several airship detachments bombarded the fortress of London and fortified places of Yarmouth and Harwich, as well as factories and places of strategic importance in the southeastern counties and on the Humber. Everywhere good effects were observed."

Commenting on the above statement the British press bureau says: "The damage done, that is to say, practically nil, is exactly what was reported in the official communiqué. There were no conflagrations of any importance and no explosions."

"There, moreover, is the strongest reason to believe that another airship in addition to the one destroyed was very seriously damaged."

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Sept. 5.—In opening the trades union congress here yesterday the president, Harry Gosling, said that in order to prove that internationalism was not dead the congress was welcoming fraternal delegates from Canada, the United States, France, and Belgium. Many things were in the melting pot at the present time of anxiety, he continued, and in the emergency thousands of trade unionists had given their lives willingly because they deemed the sacrifice essential for the purpose of national defence.

Referring to the fact that the unions were urging establishment of a ministry of labor and the increase of old age pensions to ten shillings weekly, he said, the people had submitted to every form of taxation for war requirements.

"To what would they not submit for peace requirements?" he asked.

NEW FRENCH VICTORY

General Foch Has Crushed Arm of Salient Near Combles.

Sweeping Advance on Both Sides of the Somme Results in a Considerable Gain Over a Fifteen-mile Front—Movement Was Everywhere Successful—Allies Now Hold Second German Line.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The French on Monday inflicted another crushing defeat upon the Germans north and south of the Somme. In an all-day battle they pushed their lines a considerable distance forward on a 15-mile front, from the outskirts of Combles, north of the river, to the village of Chilly, south of it.

Early yesterday General Foch began to follow up his success of Sunday, won between Combles and the river. He extended his line of attack to the area south of the Somme, along the southern edge of the Franco-British salient. He was everywhere successful.

Thus, they crushed in the whole southern arm of the salient, which German commanders in interviews with correspondents have described as the "ugliest position an army could be placed in," and in which the French were exposed to the German concentrated fire from three sides. All of the German second line in Picardy is now in the hands of the Allies.

Last week the Germans launched the most violent counter-offensive against the British on the Somme since the inception of the Picardy battle. It was successful only on a very small frontage, according to the official report received from General Sir Douglas Haig.

When the weather finally cleared, after several days of heavy and incessant rains and thunderstorms, the Germans hurled massed forces against the British positions on a 3,000-yard front, in the sector of Ginchy and Delville Wood. Five successive assaults were made, but not until the fifth was launched did the attackers succeed in carrying British positions, the four others having been broken by the British curtain of fire. The official British afternoon statement says the Teutons penetrated into an "advanced British trench at two points on a small frontage."

The German War Office briefly announced in the afternoon that German troops recaptured from the British ground lost near Longueval and Delville Wood, in heavy fighting.

In the latest British headquarters report Sir Douglas asserts that the night's attack cost the Teutons "very severe casualties." He points out that the attackers were not only met by a fusillade of British rifle-fire, but also "came under the concentrated fire at various places of our trench mortars and massed machine guns," while at several points the British artillery wrought havoc among the attacking ranks.

With the return of more favorable weather a resumption of the Anglo-French offensive on the Somme is looked for.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—It is announced officially that Dar-es-Salaam, the chief town of German East Africa, surrendered at 9 o'clock Monday morning.

The statement says that British naval forces, in co-operation with troops from Bagamoyo and Saadani, are now occupying Dar-es-Salaam.

South of Mrogoro, 100 miles west of Dar-es-Salaam, pursuit of the main German forces continues. The south-east main body, the statement adds, is in the region of Matombo, on the eastern slopes of the Uguru Mountains.

Octogenarian Ended Life.

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—John Henderson, 17 Nassau street, 84 years of age, ended his life in his room at the above address Monday morning by inhaling illuminating gas. Henderson was found by Mrs. Tulloch, the landlady, who traced the smell of gas to the old man's room. Investigation led to the discovery that the burner of the gas jet had been removed to allow the gas to escape. Dr. Cameron, 378 Spadina avenue, was called and pronounced life extinct. The body was removed to the morgue, where an inquest will be held.

NEARLY 16,000 CAPTURED.

Russia Makes Huge Gains in One Day's Battles.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The capture during Thursday's battles alone of 280 officers and 15,501 men was announced by the Russian War Office in its afternoon statement Friday. Of this total 2,400 were Germans. Six guns, 55 machine guns, and seven bomb-throwers fell into Russian hands. Despite the violence of the fighting as indicated by these figures, no substantial progress is officially claimed by Petrograd, except in the Carpathians, where a whole series of heights were captured by the Muscovites near Tomnatic mountain. The official statement reports "here" Teuton attacks in the region of Lakotschi, where the Russians obtained advantages on a narrow front," but add that "otherwise they were driven back by German counter-attacks." It is also conceded that south-west of the Holota Lipa, in the direction of Halez, the Teutons "had to give way a little before the enemy pressure."

Field Marshal von Hindenburg, who a few days ago was appointed by the Kaiser chief of the German general staff, appears to have been succeeded by Prince Leopold of Bavaria, who formerly held the extended German pink front. The name of the Bavarian prince appeared Friday in the place of Hindenburg in the official Berlin report.

Warn Canadian Railway Operatives.

OTTAWA, Sept. 5.—In connection with the threatened railway strike in the United States an important notice has been issued by the Minister of Labor, Hon. T. W. Crothers, regarding the position of Canadian railway operatives residing at points near the border and employed on railroads crossing the line, some of whom have been included in the strike order.

The notice, which was sent in the form of a message in answer to an enquiry as to the position of these workers, is as follows: "Residents of Canada joining in this strike render themselves liable to prosecution under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, and they should observe Canadian laws rather than foreign instructions."

Foe Threatens Reprisals.

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—The German Government, according to the Overseas News Agency, has addressed a vigorous protest to the Russian Government "against the barbarous treatment of prisoners of war," and has asked for an immediate cessation thereof. It is announced that if no satisfactory answer is received from the Russian Government after a fixed date reprisals will be taken by the German Government.

EVENTS MOVE SWIFTLY.

Serbians, Roumanians, and Russians Have Joined Forces.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The three outstanding developments in the Balkans situation are: Bulgaria's declaration of war against Roumania, reported in a Reuter despatch from Salonica; a declaration of war against Roumania by Turkey; the entrance of Serbian troops into Roumania, where they have joined forces with the Roumanian and Russian troops.

Meantime the Roumanian armies are continuing their rapid advance into Transsylvania. All of the Tarlung valley has been occupied in the district around Kronstadt and the important industrial centre of Petroseny, six miles within the Hungarian frontier, has been seized, according to an official announcement.

King Ferdinand has taken command of the Roumanian forces, with Gen. Ileso as chief of the general staff. It is reported that the commanders are preparing to throw an additional army across the Danube to attack the Teutonic forces in Northern Serbia. Thus far, the Roumanian losses have been slight.

Violent fighting already is developing along the Danube at points where the Russians, crossing Eastern Roumania, have reached the Bulgarian frontier.

There also is furious fighting, with the Roumanians participating, in the extreme southern end of the ranges of the Carpathians, south-west of Kimpolung.

Chinese Found Dead.

SIMCOE, Sept. 5.—A Chinese, who has been identified as Julian Lee Duck of Port Dover, who took lodgings at the Battersby House here on Sunday night, slept in the mornings and kept irregular hours, was found dead in bed in his room by Proprietor Brady. There are marks upon his chest and neck, as if inflicted by some blunt instrument. He was lying face downwards, with his head over the edge of the bed. It is believed he was demented. Coroner Richardson found that the man had been dead forty-eight hours.

Margaret is a three-year-old whose parents are fond of bacon and eggs, and Margaret has her share. One day in the country she heard for the first time a hen cackle. "Oh, mother," she exclaimed, "what does the hen say?" "Well," her mother smiled, "I suppose she says she has laid an egg." Margaret did not understand the simile, and after a moment's profound thought she came back again. "And what does she say, mother," she inquired more seriously than before—"what does she say when she lays bacon?"

Making the L Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

Potatoes continue to be one of the best of the money crops. They are suited to farms of all sizes almost unsurpassed for production among ordinary field crops.

For some years there have been dictions that potatoes would remain a paying market crop probable overproduction. Ne prices have averaged high, duction goes on. Michigan, Pennsylvania, Maine and have potato crops upward of 000. The latter, in fact, has $23,000,000. Several other above $5,000,000.

In thousands of cases the farmer has paid farmers at the rate acre or more. This can be expected favorable conditions, but wise. An average of $50 an acre be fair, and while the aim for the $100 mark, a return better than any grain crop

If there is a large quantity infected a good way is to put in an air tight room, laying toes on trays or boards so they can get between them. The 1,000 cubic feet of space use three ounces of potassium permanganate and three pints of formaldehyde in a thin layer on the bottom of a pail three feet from the potatoes. Pour the water into the pail and let stand for four hours or longer.

If disease or insects are killed in the soil it is best to spray Bordeaux is the most effective for parasitic diseases. Of course is early spraying. This for both insects and fungi follows: Copper sulphate, five fresh lime, five pounds; water, five gallons, paris green, one pound arsenate, three pounds. This have a large acreage can afford a stock of this material on hand separate vessels for the lime and copper sulphate.

Rotation of crops must be followed in order to keep the soil fresh manure is to be used if applied the fall before, but manure may be applied in the spring. Lime should not be applied before planting. Experiments that sulphate of potash produce better quality than the muriate, which have a greater value than other crops, will respond to heavier applications. A fertilizer known as a mixture is recommended a formula for potatoes. These fertilizers will pay when used at the rate of 1,500 pounds per acre at the time of planting in row remainder over the rows at the time the plants are coming up.

No farmer should depend on one crop as an exclusive crop, but success comes by making them part of a mixed farming plan. The soil right and the seed reliable to results. With a little care potatoes are likely to exceed expectations of those who plant them.

We repeat that Maxwell cars have greater horsepower, per pound of weight, than any car built.

PAINT FARM BUILDINGS.

We believe paint to the farm buildings is what varnish is to the piano. The piano might have just as rich a tone without the varnish and the granary hold the grain without the paint, but really we look for things that look finished. We find other people who are ever willing to pay for this extra something if we care to sell. When we see a building without paint we unconsciously ask ourselves, "I wonder what is the reason for this building not being painted? Did the man get disgusted with the farm or what?" We believe, aside from that side of the question, there is an economic saving in keeping the buildings painted and in good repair. We believe paint is insurance against weather. Why not take out a little of this insurance when the spring slogan is—clean up and paint up? It pays in dividends of satisfaction and contentment. — Orange Judd Farmer.

TRACTOR VERSUS HORSE.

Machine Is Far More Economical Than the Animal, It Is Stated.

That the tractor, which is gradually replacing the horse on modern farms and extensive ranges of the west, would quickly come into more general use if its economy was realized is the view of a writer in the Independent. More than one-fifth of the cultivated land of the country is required to feed the horses on the farms, he says, and these horses work only three hours each day. It costs $250 a year to feed a team of horses. One-third of the farmers in Tompkins county, N. Y., made less than $200 for their year's work in 1907, and the average labor income for 1911 in three typical and prosperous counties in Illinois, Indiana and Iowa was only $408. A team of horses is said to cost more than the average farmer makes in a year. He says that farm work can only be done economically when the farmer is directing the power of many horses as represented in the tractor. A negro driving a donkey to a small plow uses as much energy and costs his employer as much as if he were driving a great tractor which draws sixteen ten inch-plows, three six foot harrows and a seeder. Such an outfit will plow, harrow and seed seventy-five acres in a day.

A method has been devised by which the machine may be guided by a line from the steering device to a small drum on a pole planted in the center of a circular field. As the tractor moves around the circumference of the circle the line wraps about the drum and each revolution brings it a little nearer to the center, and it thus works the field in concentric circles by itself. This presentation of the case for the tractor, however, takes no account of its disadvantages, which, while being gradually overcome, are still present. The tractor represents a considerable outlay to the man on a small farm. Often he cannot afford

THE "ROSE BUG" PEST.

A Troublesome Insect to the Florist and Gardener.

(Prepared by United States department of agriculture.)

The rose chaffer, or "rose bug" as it is often called, is one of the most troublesome insects with which the florist and the gardener has to contend. This insect, which is widely distributed, appears as a long legged beetle of a yellowish brown color usually in the month of June. It strips all kinds of vegetables, fruits and flowers of their blossoms and foliage. Rose and grapevines suffer especially from the attacks of the "rose bug," but fruit and trees also are injured. In certain sections of the country whole crops are destroyed by this pest.

The "rose bug" usually disappears in from four to six weeks. In this short interval, however, it can do so much damage that its control is a problem of the greatest importance. In a new farmers' bulletin, No. 721, of the department of agriculture it is pointed out that many so called "sure" remedies, including compounds of lime, copper, kerosene and tobacco, have failed to give satisfactory results when put to a rigid test. Hardy ornamental plants, the bulletin says, may possibly be protected by a heavy application of arsenate of lead, using four or five pounds to fifty gallons of either water or bordeaux mixture. Very thorough applications should be made when the insects first appear and repeated as often as necessary. The thorough use of arsenical sprays will afford a considerable degree of protection to vineyards, the amount of benefit varying with the abundance of the insects. The use of this poison is also desirable for the control of other grape pests, and, in consequence, vineyards in sandy regions should be sprayed regularly as

TOLD BY THREE FIGURES.

A Sum In Arithmetic That Would Take Many Lifetimes to Work Out.

What is the highest number that can be expressed with only three figures? Such is the question put by the Journal of the Astronomical Society of England. At first glance it would seem that the number was 999. But it is nothing of the sort; 999 is far away too small. What, then, is the number? 9<sup>99</sup>—that is to say, the ninth power of the ninth power of 9.

To ascertain what this number actually is we must refer to a table of logarithms, for it would take several lifetimes to do the multiplication. The number contains 369,693,100 figures. To write it out we should have to fill 23 volumes of 800 pages each, with 14,000 figures to a page, and the number would be greater than that of all the atoms in creation.

Henri Coupin points out in La Nature that there are stars so distant that their light, traveling at 186,320 miles a second, takes a million years to reach the earth. Astronomers have taken this as a unit and called it a "million light year." The number of atoms in a sphere of platinum that had that radius would be 225, followed by 88 zeros. Now, a sphere that contained the number of atoms expressed by the ninth power of 9 would have to have a radius (in million light years) of all concerning which there is the least doubt. One method is to soak the potatoes in a solution of formalin. This is the best for ordinary potato pests. A large quantity to be destroyed is to place them in a tight room, laying the potatoes on boards so that the air circulates between them. Then for each 100 feet of space use twenty-five pints of potassium permanganate in a thin layer in a pail three feet or more high. Pour the formalin in and let stand for twenty-four hours.

For insects are known to be the best to spray regularly. This is the most effectual remedy for the most important diseases. Of chief importance is spraying. The mixture of insects and fungi is made as follows: copper sulphate, five pounds; lime, five pounds; water, fifty gallons; green, one pound, or lead, three pounds. Those who have acreage can afford to keep this material on hand, using it for the lime and the water.

For crops must be practiced to keep the soil clean. If there is to be used it should be applied before, but well rotted may be applied in the spring. It should not be applied directly to the soil. Experiments indicate that of potash produces a better than the muriate. Potatoes, for example, a greater value per acre for crops, will respond to heavier applications of fertilizer known as the 4-8-10, recommended as a good fertilizer for potatoes. These prepared will pay when used at the 10 pounds per acre, one-half of planting in rows and the other over the rows about the plants are coming up. It should depend on potatoes as a winter crop, but success will be made by making them part of the winter plan. The soil must be made so reliable to get good with a little care on these crops are likely to exceed the yield of those who cultivate

Chickens in the Orchard.

Count of its disadvantages, which, while being gradually overcome, are still present. The tractor represents a considerable outlay to the man on a small farm. Often he cannot afford to make the investment required, and if he could afford it there is a question whether the use of a machine would be profitable on a farm where the work could easily be done by a pair of horses. In addition, there are depreciation, buying of new parts, distance from repair shops, fuel cost and capital investment to be taken into consideration. When an absolutely fool proof tractor can be built to sell at an extremely low cost the use of motor power for the hard labor on farms will probably become general, but until then some dependence will have to be placed on the horse.

Device to Control Cattle.

When a cow wearing this yoke tries to go through a fence the hooks catch in the fence and force the prods into her back. She can get relief only by backing out. The poke is made of metal and is secured by a leather strap passing under the belly. It has two S shaped pieces, one on each side, the upper ends of which are the hooks and the lower ends the prods. A strong spring attached to a small saddle pad brings the S shaped pieces back into position.—Independent Farmer.

Treatment of Cabbage Seed.

In sections where the black rot of cabbage is prevalent all seed should be treated before planting. Black rot of cabbage is a bacterial disease which is very destructive in seed beds. The infected plants have blackened veins, and the tissue between the leaf veins turns yellow and then brown. The entire plant may be killed. The control is as follows:

Disinfect the seed, before sowing, in corrosive sublimate, 1 to 1,000, for fifteen minutes or in formalin, 1 to 200, for twenty minutes. After treatment seeds should be washed off in water and spread out to dry. The corrosive sublimate is prepared by dissolving one tablet in a quart of water. The formalin is prepared by using one-fourth pint of formaldehyde (40 per cent) dissolved in seven gallons of water. The corrosive sublimate is very poisonous.—Otto Reinking, Colorado Station.

Making Sure.

"I wish to buy some ointment."
"Yes, madam."
"Will you open the jar?"
"Why, this is a sealed package. Yours is an unusual request."
"I know, but I've often heard that there's a fly in the ointment, and I wish to make sure that there is none in what I buy."

It is not so much being exempt from faults as having overcome them that is an advantage to us.

use of this poison is also desirable for the control of other grape pests, and, in consequence, vineyards in sandy regions should be sprayed regularly as a part of the routine vineyard work. The first application of the spray should be made just before the blossoms open and the treatment repeated if necessary as soon as the blossoms fall.

For the destruction of beetles on fruit trees arsenate of lead should be used, preferably in some such fungicide as bordeaux mixture, when the beetles first appear. The strength of the solution should be from four to five pounds of arsenate of lead to fifty gallons of spray. For peaches and other stone fruits the arsenical should be used in the self boiled lime-sulphur wash or in fifty gallons of water which contains lime wash made from slaking three or four pounds of good stone lime. Repeated applications may be necessary.

Another method of control is to stir the breeding grounds of the insect to a depth of three or more inches. This should be done when the insect is in the pupal stage in the soil, the exact time varying with the latitude. In northern Ohio the most favorable period is from May 25 to June 10. In the south the work should be commenced earlier. All ground which might serve as a breeding place should be plowed and harrowed and only the heaviest land left in grass. The "rose bug" prefers light, sandy regions for its breeding ground, and clay lands, unless they are near sandy soil, are seldom troubled.

FARM GARDEN POINTERS.

Making a good garden is a man's job. Do not leave the hard work to the women folks.

The first tomatoes to ripen that are oval and smooth contain the seed that should be saved.

It is fatal to some plants to fertilize them with rich manures when the ground is very dry.

Cauliflower can be grown more easily than cabbage. It is always in demand and at good prices.

The onion is akin to the turnip and cabbage. You must see that the roots are well in the ground, but need not be so particular about the bulb.

Profitable farming and gardening calls for more thought put into the business, but it also calls for considerable labor and that given at the right time.

One man can grow and care for four acres of strawberries, but it will take much extra help to pick them.

Angry.

"She trumped his ace."
"Did he say anything?"
"He couldn't have said more if he had been married to her."

Wine and the Bush.

In olden times ivy bushes used to be hung over the doors of taverns as signboards because the plant was sacred to Bacchus, the god of wine.

It is not the insurrection of ignorance that is dangerous, but the revolts of intelligence.—Lowell.

contained the number of atoms expressed by the ninth power of the ninth power of 9 would have to have a radius (in million light years) of 1,239, followed by 123,231,000 zeros.

And yet this colossal number can be expressed by three figures.

Tame Silk.

There is more silk in the world than the silkworm ever knew. As a matter of fact, much of the "silk" which is worn is merely guncotton in a new dress. It is merely cotton dissolved in a bath of nitric acid, kept water free by the strongest vitriol. The jelly-like result is then forced through very minute tubes, and the fine threads so produced are dropped into water and rendered innocuous by ammonium sulphide. This "tame silk" has a fine luster and has all the flexibility of the worms' work. In fact, so close is the resemblance that it needs an expert to distinguish them.—London Chronicle.

She Liked Gloom.

It is a matter for thankfulness that widows of this generation are more sensible than the dowager Countess of Buchan, who passed away in the year 1793.

On the death of her husband she dressed herself entirely in black crape, engaged two black servants to wait upon her, ate nothing but black puddings and drank for one whole year nothing but black cherry brandy. Yet she survived this gloomy diet twenty-one years before the grim reaper gathered her in.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

Blunt.

Jones' opinion of himself as a golfer was very much greater than his skill warranted, and he had been invited to play on a certain famous Scottish ground as a visitor. Armed to the teeth with clubs of all sorts and sizes, he set off and, followed by a caddy, proceeded to play.

He buried his ball in every bunker, gully and bit of rough grass on the landscape and muttered naughtily. After half an hour of it he turned to his silent caddy.

"Really," he murmured ingratiatingly, "this is the most difficult course I have ever played on."

"Hoo did ye ken?" replied the lad, in scorn. "Ye hevna played on it yet!"

Rodin and His Models.

It is one of the peculiarities of M. Rodin, the famous sculptor, that he never poses a model. When a model enters his studio he engages her in conversation upon a subject foreign to art and thus encourages her to forget herself. Meanwhile his attention appears to be engrossed elsewhere, but he is watching her keenly. When the model unconsciously assumes a pose or an expression which he believes would be effective he bids her hold that position, while he sets to work. By this method he believes he avoids stilted and studied poses.

Victoria Cross was awarded to Lieut. Robinson for "most conspicuous bravery."

Lieut. Robinson is twenty-one years of age. On Saturday night he was scouting in an ordinary way, having been in the air two hours alone in an aeroplane. When searchlights revealed the presence of the Zeppelin he kept in touch with the rays and followed the hostile craft for more than twenty miles. Then his opportunity presented itself and he was quick to take advantage.

ATTACKS AT CLOSE RANGE

Lieutenant Robinson made his attack at close range. The Zeppelin, throwing out great clouds of smoke, like the smoke curtain of a torpedo-boat destroyer, tried to elude him, but he stuck to its trail, and diving beneath the giant gas bag began firing with his machine gun. His shots hit the petrol tanks, which exploded, firing the gas bag.

Robinson quickly descended, narrowly avoiding a serious accident on the way, and telephoned his report to Headquarters. Then he was off in an automobile to the scene of the wreck. Prior to his successful attack on the Zeppelin, Robinson had engaged another of the invading airships.

Early Sunday morning when crowds began to gather around the wreck of the airman. Lieut. Robinson was one of the most unconcerned spectators. He was standing with his back toward the debris, chatting with brother officers, when the searching party which was examining the wreckage discovered an Iron Cross.

$20,000 IN REWARDS

"Pass the word to Robinson" said the officers in command, and that was the first anyone outside official circles knew the young lieutenant was the conqueror of the Zeppelin. The Iron Cross and a revolver found in the debris were handed over to him. He also will receive about $20,000 in rewards offered by various organizations for the first aviator to bring down a Zeppelin on British soil.

An investigation of the remains of the Zeppelin and an inquest over the bodies of the crew resulted in a verdict that "the Zeppelin was brought down by the fire of a British aeroplane manned by Lieut. Robinson of the Royal Flying Corps, deaths of the crew being due to the destruction of the Zeppelin."

At the inquiry one officer of the Royal Flying Corps testified that there was no means of identifying the half-burned bodies of the Zeppelin crew, the air sailors not having worn the customary metal identification disks. There were a few charred personal effects, including a coat and a watch. Most of the metal buttons on the coat had been melted by the intense heat.

A police officer testified to having seen three burning bodies near the propeller of the wrecked airship. They were still burning when the airship came to land. One of the men had his legs burned off and another his arms as far as the elbows.

In all sixteen bodies were recovered.

As an evidence of the strenuous work of the Canadian troops in the trenches it is reported, in a letter received from the front that one of the 59th officers has suffered such a mental shock as a result of his first two days in the trenches that he had to be removed back of the line for several days in order to give him a chance to recuperate.

Root, eldest son of Mr. Geo. Root, of Napanee. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Chas. E. Cragg of Grace church. # The Late Robert Glen.

Robert Glen, an old and respected citizen of Amherst Island, died at his home on Monday, August 28th, in his eighty-fifth year. His father, the late Daniel Glen, was one of the early pioneers of Isle Tante, and settled in the third concession, when Robert was an infant, coming from County Down, Ireland. Deceased has lived on the island ever since. He could relate many interesting stories of the earlier days. In his younger days he sailed on the lakes, but most of his lifetime was spent on the second concession. In later years he has lived in Stella. Fifty-seven years ago he married Jane Cousins, daughter of William Cousins, who was another pioneer of the island. Seven years ago they celebrated their golden wedding, when they received the congratulations of their children,

Fall Painting.

The fall of the year is a good time for people to paint their houses, and for two reasons. First, because it is a time when men are not so busy with regular farm work as they are in the spring, and second, because in the cooler weather paint takes the proper length of time to dry. It is also a well-recognized fact now-a-days that a house well painted in the fall will withstand the destructive effects of winter snow and ice much better than the house which has not been recently painted. And so it is that each year in Canada as well as in the United States, there is an increasing interest in fall as well as spring painting.
 More of it is being done, particularly in the country districts. We were interested this week to see the fine stock of house paints being shown by McCABE & SHAVER, the local agents of Brandram-Henderson, Limited, who make the famous Brandram's B.B. Genuine White Lead and B-H "English Paint." We were interested to hear that the latter product is guaranteed to contain 70% of pure white lead and 30% of pure zinc, thus combining in the proper proportions the two pigments which assure the most servicable paint. The consumption of this paint in Canada has increased enormously in recent years.
 It may be news to some of our readers to learn that the Brandram firm has been in business in England since the latter part of the eighteenth century.
 The Brandrams were well known throughout the world for nearly a century before Canada had made any progress as a manufacturing country, and very early they established a Canadian connection. It was, in a great measure, from this connection that the necessity arose for the great lead works in Montreal, operated by Brandram-Henderson, Limited.
 It is there that the supply of B. B.
 Genuine White Lead for Canada is now corroded and it is there also that B-H "English" Paint is made. Any of our readers who will call at the local agents for B-H "English" Paint, will be given full information regarding prices and also an estimate of the quantity required for each yard of surface he may wish to paint.

WHAT MADE SOUTH WEST TORONTO FLOP?

The sheaf of telegrams, ranging from Halifax to Vancouver, which Hartley Dewart, K.C., received by way of congratulation on his victory in South West Toronto, indicates that the Liberal heart the Dominion over is glad that Tory Toronto is shaking off her shackles.

The spectacle of men, who had been Tory workers for years, taking part in a demonstration for a Liberal victory under the very windows of the Mail and Empire was a sight for sore eyes. The election in South West Toronto is somewhat bewildering on account of the profusion of candidates and the variegated interests they represented, but the main fact which emerges is that a Liberal won. That is to say Toryism of the most reactionary and arbitrary kind was stricken to the ground in its chief citadel, Toronto. There has not been a Liberal member for any of the Toronto constituencies in the Ontario Legislature for twenty-six years. Hartley Dewart broke the spell.

To a cosmopolitan constituency such as South West Toronto, Mr. Dewart appeals as a man of broad sympathies and popular convictions. He has blazed the path. Other Liberal members will follow.

There are many explanations of Mr. Dewart's victory—they are all wrong, except the one that he won on his merits and on the issues he advocated. The Toronto Telegram broaches the theory that he won because of his brilliant cross-examination of Sir Sam Hughes—that may have helped some. The Toronto News rather thinks that prohibition had something to do with it but that is the News' mistake. Mr. Dewart did not discuss prohibition except as a fait accompli. By an arrangement between both parties it had been placed upon the statute book as a war measure and was now the law of the land. It was the Liberal policy of the day and he accepted it as such. After that he passed on to the live issues—nickel and hydro-radial.

It may be as the News says that the prohibitionists voted for him. Why shouldn't they? It may be that the liquor people took their revenge on the Hearst Government for selling them out. Why shouldn't they? If they thought that voting for Mr. Dewart, a Liberal, was a direct slap in the face to a Conservative Government for betraying them, that was their own business. But there is one sure thing. Whiskey did not fight for Mr. Dewart. What it did was to refuse to fight for the other fellow. In the language of the street "it laid down." And this discloses another fact. The boasted Tory organization in Toronto is a myth. There is no Tory organization in the Queen City when the dark lantern captains of the saloon brigade refuse to do their usual work at the polls. On the other hand prohibition voted strongly for Mr. Dewart. One of his largest majorities was in South Parkdale, which is a prohibition stronghold.

The Conservative machine seeks to draw comfort from the fact that it was a small vote. That is also a delusion. Considering the fact that there are five thousand votes away at the war and that the contest was held on a list two years old it was in "open market."

That was one of Mr. Dewart's issues, the manufacture of our own nickel on our own soil, the control of the output so far as refusing to sell it to the enemies of the British Empire and adequate taxation of its swollen profits.

That was the financial side of it. The other side, the infamy of killing Canadian soldiers with Canadian nickel from German guns had even more force. The following anecdote illustrates how the people took it up.

"Last year," said an old man at one of Mr. Dewart's meetings, Lieutenant Blank went to the front. He weighed one hundred and twenty pounds when he went away. He came home the other day, dead of course, and he weighed one hundred and ninety pounds. There was seventy pounds of Frank Cochrane's nickel in him." It was a parable, of course, that the old man was relating, but it states the case better than a much longer argument.

Then there was Hydro-Radial. Mr. Dewart fell in behind Sir Adam Peck on his great public ownership enterprise. Sir Adam has to find his friends outside the party now because both the Borden Government and the Hearst Government are opposed to the project and do their best to clip his wings and curtail his power. The Hearst Government incidentally seems to have caught a bad habit from the late Roblin Government—namely dating back orders-in-council, with a view to covering up their machinations against the public welfare.

Messrs. Ferguson and Lucas also helped by their performances on the platform. Mr. Lucas back-pedalled on prohibition to the extent of asking the people to elect Mr. Norris as a wine-and-beer candidate, in which case Mr. Norris would be accepted as a nudge to the Hearst Government to begin renegging. Such was the disgust of the public at their pusillanimous tactics that they elected Mr. Dewart instead of Mr. Norris, which means that instead of a nudge they got a kick in the slats.

Brother Fox, that is to say Mr. Hanna, lay low and said nothing but joyfully watched Messrs. Ferguson, Lucas, and McGarry, three little country lawyers, that had tried to play smart with him by voting him out of the Premier'ship, walk into the pits he had dug for them. Howard Ferguson, otherwise known as Howard the Horrible, pulled most of the bonehead plays, but then Howard is a bush leaguer and naturally, one expects that sort of stuff from him. Howard tried to make bilingual schools the issue but the people yelled "old stuff" and he had to drop it. Next night he made a few delicate remarks about Roman Catholic priests which fixed the Irish vote up good and plenty—for Mr. Dewart.

Since the election he has been busy getting rid of what little of the Jewish vote the Conservative party had left by sneering at Mr. Dewart's propaganda in favor of the restoration of Palestine to the Chosen People. This is not such a joke as Busher Ferguson and his pals, the Toronto News and the Toronto Telegram, seem to think. On the contrary it is a very serious matter with the Hebrew people who, ever since Turkey got into the war, have seen their chance of rescuing the Holy Land from the Turk's clutch and placing it under the protection of Great Britain.

The election in South West Toronto was the writing on the wall for the

there are five thousand votes away at the war and that the contest was held on a list two years old, it was a large vote. Where Liberal gains were made was in the absence of pluggers. Naturally with five thousand votes out of town, a certain number of persons appeared who were willing to give those votes absent treatment in the Conservative interest. And here came in the clever work of Mr. R. T. Harding, who acted as Mr. Dewart's adjutant-general. Mr. Harding had taken the precaution to send letters, returnable to his address, to these absentees, and these letters were duly returned when the addresses were not to be found. Consequently when a personator of any of these absentees appeared at a polling booth the Liberal scrutineer would draw the returned letter on him and he would go away a sadder and wiser man. This manoeuvre naturally headed the pluggers off and deprived the boasted Tory organization of a great deal of its raw material.

Outside the personal merits of the Candidate the election was won on three positive issues—nickel, hydro-rail and the pernicious activities of Sir Sam Hughes. Mr. Dewart exposed the operations of the nickel trust, its chief protagonist, the Hon. Frank Cochrane, his puppet premier Mr. Hearst, and his private lieutenants, Messrs. Ferguson and McGarry. The arguments are too recent to need repeating. Suffice it to say that the International Nickel Company is taxed only $40,000 a year on an annual output of thirty seven million dollars worth of nickel matte, which is handled by an American refinery and therefore leaves not a dollar resulting from one of our greatest natural resources in the country. What's more, the International Nickel Company has been selling our nickel for years to the Germans and has actually sent fifteen million pounds of it to Germany since the war has been on. There is a "gentleman's agreement" between the Borden Government and the Nickel Trust that no nickel shall go to Germany while the war is in progress, but how effective that agreement is may be inferred from the fact that the submarine Deutschland had no difficulty in getting all it could carry

MORE VALUABLE DEAD THAN ALIVE

A well-known Toronto sportsman who is a sergeant in the Canadian Army Medical Corps, writes to a Toronto friend from a dressing station close to where the Canadians are doing their big work. He says in part: "We have moved our abode since last I wrote and are now right close up to the front. There is a military cemetery just behind us and Major General Mercer is buried there, also Lieut. Hazen, son of the minister of marine."

"Gen. Mercer's grave is just a plain soldier's resting place, the same as any ordinary soldier would get, with the same little wooden cross bearing a small aluminum plate reading 'Major-General M. S. Mercer, C. B., killed in action, June, 1916.' That is all there is to denote that a famous soldier and one who was universally liked, is laid to rest there."

"One comes across some very pathetic incidents at times in these burial grounds. Last Sunday in a small plot I saw a grave bearing the inscription, 'In memory of an unknown British soldier who fell on the field of honor.'"

"The Canadian boys are sports at all times. They never forget the games they learned in peace times. We actually played a game of cricket last month when heavy shells were dropping less than a quarter of a mile away, and it is quite a common thing to be playing some game with hostile aircraft overhead. You know we get so hardened to hearing and seeing these things that they gradually become part of our daily life, and we treat them with contempt until perhaps they hit something which is perilously near, and then we get the 'win up' for a while, but it is soon over and we carry on the game again."

Referring to the death of a well-known Toronto soccer player, he laments the fact that Canada's best is giving up its life's blood on the fields of Flanders.

"It's a crime that such young, healthy and promising fellows as he should be mown down by a bunch of barbarous fiends as those Huns are. The Hun on land or sea is no good to anybody. He is far more valuable dead than alive and is so callous that he would suck 'bulls' eyes' at his mother's funeral and think 'twas all in the day's work. But what gets my goat is that when they are taken prisoners they try to kid you that they are the finest fellows on earth, and sometimes they almost have you believing that they are not so bad after all."

"They will smile and offer you souvenirs and shower thanks on you if you give them a cigarette and say 'Engleesh goot' but if there happens to be about six Huns to one of our fellows they will soon show you how much they think of the 'Engleesh' and in double-quick time."

"I heard of a case during a mix-up

Bread Making Contests At Rural School Fairs

PRIZES—Free Courses at Macdonald Institute, Guelph
Free Poultry Raising Courses at Ontario Agricultural College
Free Cook Books and Magazines

Over 1,500 prizes in all will be offered in bread-making contests which will be held this fall at over 250 rural school fairs taking place in Ontario. It will be a great event at the fairs and will stimulate interest in bread-making among young girls between the ages of 12 and 17 years.

Here is a wonderful opportunity for your daughter to win for herself a Free Course in Domestic Science at the famous Macdonald Institute, Guelph. All she has to do is to bake one double loaf of bread and enter it in the contest at the fair according to the conditions explained below and more fully told in the folder we will send you on request. The loaf must be baked with

Cream of the West Flour

the hard wheat flour guaranteed for bread.

This is a splendid flour which makes the biggest, bulging loaves—whitest, lightest and most wholesome bread you ever baked. Is this not a splendid opportunity to interest your daughters in breadmaking?

Here are the Splendid Prizes offered for the best loaf of bread baked with Cream of the West Flour. The following are offered at each local fair:

1st Prize.—1 paid-up subscription to "My Magazine" for 1 year. This magazine is full from cover to cover every month with articles suitable for young people of all ages. It is published in England. Value $2.50 per year.
2nd Prize.—6 months paid-up subscription to "My Magazine." Value $1.25.

Extra Prizes.—When entries exceed ten a 3rd prize will be awarded of 6 mos. paid-up subscription to "My Magazine." When the number of entries exceeds twenty the judges at the fair will award 4th, 5th, and 6th prizes of one year's paid-up subscriptions to "The Little Paper." This is a wonderful little publication issued every month in England. Its eight pages are packed with highly engaging information and stories relating to history, nature-study, animals, bird-life, etc.

Important—The winners of 1st prizes at the fairs automatically become competitors for the Provincial Prizes. The second half of the double loaf is sent to Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, by the district representative in special container provided. The judging is done by Miss M. A. Purdy of the Department of Breadmaking and Flour Testing at the College.

Provincial Prizes—The winners of first prize at each local fair compete for following Provincial prizes. The first and second prizes, or third and fourth prizes, will not be awarded in any one county:

1st Prize.—Short Course (3 months) in Domestic Science at Macdonald Institute, Guelph. The Macdonald Institute does not accept students under the age of 17 years; if the winner be less than 17 we present her with a certificate entitling her to take the course when she reaches the right age. Value of course $75.00, which pays for fees, room, board and washing. The winner lives at Macdonald Hall while taking course.

2nd Prize.—Short Course (3 months) in Domestic Science at Macdonald Institute, Guelph.

3rd Prize.—Short Course (4 weeks) in Poultry Raising at Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. Girls taking this course do not live at the College, but good boarding houses will be secured for them in Guelph. Value of course $35.00, which pays board of student in Guelph. (No fees are charged for course.)

4th Prize.—Short Course (4 weeks) in Poultry Raising at the Ontario Agricultural College.

5th to 29th Prizes.—The Famous Boston Cooking-school Cook Book by Fannie Merritt Farmer, latest edition (1914). There are 2117 thoroughly tested recipes and 130 photographic reproductions of dishes, etc., besides much special information.

Conditions of the Contest

Every girl may compete at the rural school fair in her district, whether or not she attends school, providing that her 12th birthday occurs before November 1st, 1916, or her 17th birthday does not occur before Nov. 1, 1916. One loaf of bread must be submitted baked in pan about 7 x 5 inches and 3 inches deep, and divided into twin loaves so that they may be separated at the fair. The loaf must be baked with Cream of the West Flour. One half will be judged at the fair. The other half first prize loaf will be sent to Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, to compete in the Provincial Contest. The local contest at the fair will be conducted under the same rules as all the other regular contests at your fair.

The standard by which bread will be judged will be as follows:

- |                            |          |

Each loaf must be accompanied by the part of the flour bag containing the face of the Old Miller (important) and an entry form must be signed by the girl and parents or guardian stating date of birth, P.O. address, and giving name of dealer from whom Cream of the West Flour was purchased. The form will state that the girl actually baked the loaf entered in the competition. The forms will be provided at the time of the fair. The decision of the judges is final. Not more than one entry may be made by each girl and not more than one prize will be awarded to the same family.

The Results of the contests at the fair will be made known in the usual way as in the case of all the other regular contests. The Provincial results will be announced as soon as possible after the conclusion of the Rural School Fairs in the Province.

Do Not Miss this Great Opportunity: Every girl between 12 and 17 years should compete. What a splendid way to stir up increased interest in breadmaking! Get a supply of Cream of the West Flour at your dealers and practise using it as often as possible to increase the chances of winning. If your dealer cannot sell it to you, write to the Campbell Flour Mills Co., Ltd., Toronto, and they will promptly tell you the nearest place to get it.

No Competitions in Counties Named Below: The competition is open to all parts of the province where Rural School Fairs are held, except the districts of Rainy River, Kenora, Manitoulin and Thunder Bay. These districts are the only parts of the province where school fairs are held by the Department of Agriculture in which this competition will not be a feature. There are no district-representatives of the Department of Agriculture in the Counties of Huron, Perth, Wellington, Haliburton, Prescott, Russell or Lincoln, and no rural school fairs are held in these Counties by the Department of Agriculture. We regret, therefore, that the competition cannot include these Counties.

A TALE of RED ROSES

By
GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER

"Where's Mike?" demanded Molly hastily and in some fear.

Bert Glider and five of the eight couples whom Molly had invited had already arrived and were now, of course, thronged eagerly in the doorways.

"What's your hurry, Molly?" snickered loose jointed Dicky Reynolds. "Hold your caller till I run out and get Smash. He knows me."

"Don't you dare!" shrieked Molly, distrusting him with good reason.

Bob loosened his throat enough to answer the challenge from the kennel, and there wasn't a girl left in the doorways except Jessie Peters, who clung to Dicky's sleeve.

"I'll go with you, Dicky," offered circular little Willie Walters, with an echo of Dicky's snicker.

"If you do he'll bark at you," hotly retorted Molly, knowing Wee Willie's cautious propensities.

The rest of the boys were for keeping up the good work, but Sledge cut short the incipient hysteria by picking up Bob by the neck, returning to the door and booming into the night the silent, potent syllable:

"Mike!"

A squatty man, who looked so much like Bob, even to a patched eye, that they could have been taken for twins, emerged from the darkness, hugged Bob to his bosom like a brother and hurried away.

Fern and Molly looked at each other with dismay. If this was the start of the evening what else might they expect!

"Why didn't Mike take them both away?" whispered Fern. "You poor girl!"

"I'm not!" denied Molly fiercely. "I said this morning that I'd like to see Bob, and, of course, Mr. Sledge brought him. The only trouble is he's so quick."

"He's instantaneous," corrected Fern. "You have to admire it," laughed Molly. "Well, the only thing I can do is to be as game as he is." And upon Sledge's return from some careful directions to an unseen companion of Mike's she introduced him to her friends with all the sprightliness of which she was capable.

In that process she firmly intended to make him the center of things and to see that he had a good time. He relieved her of that tremendous burden, however, for after moving through ejected into the sky, with a loud, unearthly noise, a tremendous assortment of fiery meteors, mostly red. Roman candles in reckless bunches shot up from behind every bush, skyrockets dragged their spiraling tails through all the available circumambience, while fancy bombs carried their aerial floaters and other brilliant pyrotechnical surprises into all the celestial territory hitherto unoccupied.

Through it all Sledge stood as immovable and as impassive as if he had been glued to the spot and frozen. Even when the display flowed out into the middle of the highway and piled up the street cars for two blocks in both directions he remained a calm and disinterested spectator. The president of the traction company was thrown into extreme agitation by this excess of zeal, for he had some consideration for the feelings of the public, and he rushed right out to restore the scattered schedule.

"Here, what's this?" he demanded of a demon with a smoke blackened face. "Why are you holding up the cars?"

"Sledge's orders," replied the demon, lighting the fuse of a red rose set piece. "He said everything went, and it's going."

Mr. Marley came back.

Sledge was no longer on the porch. Molly had slipped in to wrap up some cake for Baby Peters, and Sledge, who seemingly saw nothing, had followed her.

"Well, is your party a hit?" he anxiously inquired.

"It's a scream!" she said, unable to control her laughter. "Really, Mr. Sledge, I have you to thank for the most extravagantly joyous occasion at which I have ever had the good fortune to preside."

"We'll open her another notch next time," he confidently promised her. "Molly, marry me."

"Oh, it's impossible!" she blurted. "Really, I'm sorry, Mr. Sledge. I know it's my own fault, but I didn't mean it to go this far. I don't mean that—that is—well, I don't know what I mean. You've been so good, and I do appreciate it so, but it is impossible! I simply couldn't. Don't you see?"

"You'll come around to it."

"I bet I don't!" she blazed.

"What'll you bet—Smash against Bob?"

"Anything you like!" she angrily agreed, furious enough to poison him.

"No," she drawled again.

"But, Molly, I must see you," he seriously insisted. "It's important."

"It always is," she laughed. "What's it about this time?"

"Oh, the same old thing," he acknowledged, "only more so."

"You're crowding them closer together," chided Molly. "Moreover, this is the first time by telephone, I think."

"I didn't mean it to be so," he apologized. "You've trapped me into it and taken away any chance I might have of persuasiveness. Now I suppose it will be the same old answer."

"Not necessarily," was her astounding reply, in the same sleepy drawl.

"What!" he gasped. "Say that again."

"Not necessarily," she repeated, and he caught the sound of a repressed giggle.

"You're teasing me," he protested. "You don't mean that I'm to have the right answer this time."

"It depends on what you mean by the right answer."

"The one I've always wanted."

"What one is that?"

"Yes," he blurted.

"Yes what?"

"Will you?"

"Yes."

"Yes what?" he confusedly demanded.

"I will. Say, Bert, I don't like the all platinum settings. I like the gold with the platinum prongs. Size six and a half."

"I'm cheated," he earnestly complained. "There are certain formalities which I am keenly missing. I'm coming out."

The governor's ball being considered by common consent the first social gun of the season, after which lesser social lights might presume to shine with authorization, everybody who was anybody made it a point to be there and compare artillery. They made it a special point this year since Governor Waver's term was expiring, and a share at least of the governor's social glory would flicker out with his office.

Molly Marley in the first breathing moment after the grand circle of introductions led Fern about the stately modern mansion with an air of proprietorship, for this was her second visit, and she displayed with glee the conservatory fountains, the marble swimming pool, the pipe organ, the outdoor sleeping rooms and the sunken gardens, all of which she had mentioned to Sledge the previous day. She had not known until afterward that she had had this very place in mind.

"It's a dream!" declared Fern, with awed enthusiasm. "Wouldn't you like to own a wonderful place like this, Molly?"

"It isn't worth the moral price," judged Molly, looking about the beautiful grounds with a sigh of admiration, nevertheless. "It would be nice, though, after all," she finally admitted.

"Mrs. Waver doesn't seem to enjoy it," wondered Fern. "She hides as much as possible, I think."

"She has never overcome her fear of using the wrong fork," guessed Molly. "That wasn't nice, Fern," she quickly added. "Mrs. Waver is a good, sweet woman, like my own mother, but I

Molly, mindful of her duties as hostess, dropped in occasionally to see that he was satisfied, and each time she found him in exactly the same position, as placidly contented as he could possibly have been in the little back room of the Occident saloon. On one of her visits, after answering in the affirmative her inquiry if he was all right, he rose from his comfortable nest in the big leather chair.

"I suppose we eat," he guessed. "I think you'd call it bluff," she laughingly returned.

"I get you," he replied. "Mostly decorations. Souvenirs?"

"The usual."

"Hand 'em these," and he thrust into her hands two bundles of small envelopes, red ones and white ones.

She looked at them blankly a moment.

"I—get you," she smiled, flushing slightly as she wondered whether her adoption of his phrase was flattery or ridicule. "Red ones, in honor of the roses, are for girls, and the white ones for the boys. What are they?"

"Aw, nothing much," he diffidently replied as he resumed his seat. "Season tickets for grand opera week in the red ones and for the Athletic club fights in the white ones. Admit two. Is it all right?"

"Is it all right? It's glorious!" she assured him, with shining eyes.

Delighted with this unmatchable novelty, Molly was herself placing the red and white envelopes at the covers in the dining room when Bert Glider found her there and closed the door after himself.

"Molly, you're carrying this Sledge joke too far!" he hotly charged.

"Who elected you?" she quietly wanted to know and laid a white envelope at his place with extreme care, angling the corner of it just so.

"Both of us, I hope," he stated, displaying a warning signal by pulling at the top of his collar to give his throat more room. "Molly"—And he advanced toward her.

The symptoms were unmistakable. Molly, having rounded the end of the table, slipped out through the pantry door and handed her remaining envelopes to the intellectual looking butler.

"Place these on the table just as I have done. Alternate red and white ones," she kindly directed, and the next time Bert saw her she was the live center of the laughing taffy pulling. She had preferred to escape rather than to treat this matter either seriously or flippantly when she was annoyed with him.

At 11:30 Mr. Marley, with the worry of eight absent mothers on his own shoulders, was fretting over some invitation to send them home when the earth split open in the wide stretch of vacant land across the street and

CHAPTER III.

An Engagement Without a Kiss.

BERT, annoyed by the events of the evening, but relieved to some extent by Molly's inextinguishable and delightful change of manner toward him in the pleasant half hour before the party had dispersed, took his thoughtful place in Sledge's machine and prepared for the usual welcome silence, which those who knew him had a right to expect from the reticent boss. To his surprise, however, Sledge talked.

"Great party Molly had," observed the donor of the fireworks and the music and the passes and the red roses.

"A feverish success," agreed Bert. "Molly is inclined to give you all the credit for it."

"She can have anything she wants," stated Sledge. "I'm going to marry her."

"Did she say so?" inquired Bert. "Not yet," acknowledged Sledge. "She's thinking it over."

"Oh!" returned Bert, much relieved and smiling in the darkness. He complacently twirled his mustache. He had a good one on Molly.

"What time am I to see you in the morning about that Porson property?" he inquired, determined not further to discuss the lady.

"Eleven o'clock."

Bert went into the house, half amused and wholly vexed. It might be very funny to see this blundering big boor making a fool of himself, but the joke was entirely ruined by the fact that at the same time he was making a fool of everybody else.

Bert knew, to the share, how much street railway and Gas and Electric stock Marley held. The growing city needed vastly increased transportation facilities, and with the increase of these would come an increase of Marley wealth and influence. It might be a very handy thing for a young real estate dealer to have the president of a rapidly expanding street railway company for a father-in-law. He went to sleep, dreaming pleasantly of extensions and subdivisions and advance information on factory sites—and of Molly, of course!

He awoke determined to concrete these dreams or to dismiss them and find others. Molly had either to accept him or definitely to turn him loose after what other fish there might be in the sea. The absurdity of having Sledge for a rival was too much to endure.

He went to his office, dividing this train of thought with his plans for the marketing of the Porson tract, hurried to the First National to secure a loan of ten thousand on the new property and arranged at the German bank for an extension of certain other loans which would have to be deferred if he used his ten thousand available funds to complete the cash purchase which Bendix demanded. These more urgent matters disposed of, he called up Molly.

"May I come out?" he demanded. "When?" drawled a languid voice. "Right away."

added. "Mrs. Waver is a good, sweet woman, like my own mother, but I don't believe she is quite comfortable in all this magnificence. Governor Waver, on the other hand, likes it and consequently looks as if he belonged here."

"That's the trouble with most marriages," observed Fern from the depth of her twenty-one years of wisdom. "They're so unequal. It's perfectly ghastly, Molly, for either a man or a woman to marry beneath one's own capabilities of expansion."

"What does it say on the next page?" laughed Molly.

They were winding up out of the quaintly lighted sunken gardens, and they both stopped to admire the coldly severe beauty of the big white marble house as it lay gleaming in the moonlight.

"That there's no danger of that with you and Bert, you lucky girl," replied Fern, with a queer note in her voice, at which Molly wondered. "Bert's a dandy fellow. It makes me hopping mad on your account when anybody knocks him."

"Has the Lord Help the Absent Member club got at him, too?" asked Molly, with a smile. "I thought only women were eligible for discussion."

"They take anybody," dryly commented Fern. "But, after all, it is you who are up."

"Me!" gasped Molly. "Tell me the worst about myself."

"You've made a sensational hit," giggled Fern, "and that's enough to send you to the electrical chair any place. However, they're taking it out in pity."

"They must hate me, then," Molly felt assured at last of her success. "But why pity?"

"Bert," responded Fern. "He isn't here."

"He telephoned me this afternoon he might be late," said Molly, with a slightly worried air. "What of it?"

"Common malice, on view in the cloakroom, has it that he is at the present moment unrepresentable," stated Fern and winked. "It would be absurd if it were not so mean. I gave one cat a piece of my mind about it, the feather chinned woman with the purple condolence ribbons fastened on her cerise chiffon with brass furniture tacks."

Molly howled at the description.

"Wow!" she gasped. "That's Mrs. Senator Allerton. What did you say to her?"

"That she seemed so happy to believe the worst and that!"

"I'll give you my little spangle fan for that as soon as we go home," promised Molly.

"You're almost as liberal as Sledge," complimented Fern. "I wouldn't give up that spangle fan for worlds. What do you suppose is keeping Bert, Molly?"

"He's probably 'slewed,' to use the Sledge dictionary," responded Molly calmly.

"Does that mean the same as jagged?"

"Spifficated," elucidated Molly. "Don't look so shocked, Fern. Bert isn't in the habit of it. Any of the boys will tell you that he's so sober he breaks up most of their parties."

"Then why did he show off tonight?"

"I believe they call it drowning their

"They're already forming grand march," the mayor informed as he led the way to the big hall with the magnificent pipe organ. Molly had coveted for a year.

The line was half formed. The parade was filling rapidly, much laughing confusion as or hurried with her down to center of the hall, where it already stood with his lady.

True, he had danced with her two Occasionally she caught sight of Sledge in the throng, although she had not seen him on the floor, and she realized that her number with him would be a "sit out." Perhaps that was wh it had been put down so far in the program, when she would welcome rest. It was like his doing, for she had to acknowledge that he was a least farsighted.

One thing perplexed her. He was much less awkward and much more a ease here than he had been at the party. Whenever she saw him he was talking gravely with men of large af-airs, and, to her surprise, she observed that, in every case, he was accorded notable respect. Even the musician seemed absorbedly interested in him and her leading millionaire came bac to him again and again. She wondered why men sought him, and she was still wondering when the eminent sociologist fairly snatched her out of th receptiveness. She had won by her own power, but Sledge had given her the glorious opportunities. His omni-potence began to annoy her and his ruthlessness to inflame her already inflamed resentment.

She knew precisely what was happening at this moment. He was creat-dance cards, with no compunction about having discommoded or distressed any one. Then there was Bert downtown battling with a disaster which had thrown him completely from his feet. Poor Bert! She had by no means forgotten him, even amid the height of her excitement. She should have been there to comfort him, and yet—well, he had not seen fit to come to her for comfort. Men were queer creatures. A woman when disaster overtook her did not need to deaden her intelligence. She needed it then more than ever.

After all, though, Bert was a man, and that was the way of men, and there was no use to dream of overturn-

she could be of more help to Bert af-

KISSING TICKETS.

They Are Sold at All Large Railroad Stations in England.

The guard waved his flag; the lover kissed his girl, she jumped aboard, shut the door, put her laughing face
out of the window, and just as the train was starting he kissed her again. And the cost of this osculation was 1 penny.

That was over in England, where they have what are called "kissing tickets." These may be obtained at any of the larger railroad stations from regular slot machines at a penny apiece, giving the purchaser the privilege of going on the platform and being with his friends or—as in the case outlined—friend up to the last moment.

This custom of issuing platform tickets came about by the big railroad companies realizing that the delay caused by people crowding around all the carriage doors saying goodbye when the train ought to be under way was costing them money amounting to many thousands of pounds in the course of the year.

ed why men sought him, and she was still wondering when the eminent sociologist fairly snatched her out of the arms of the mayor after the eighth dance.

"Come and watch me smoke a cigarette," he begged her. "I've been trying to get a chance to talk with you again the entire evening, but there's always such an increasingly mad scramble around you that the attempts made me feel undignified."

"You'd worry a lot about that," she guessed.

"Wouldn't I?" he laughed. "Will you chill if we step out on the terrace?"

"I don't know how," she happily told him, and they hurried outside, where he led her to a seat in the moonlight and deftly made her comfortable with three cushions from as many chairs.

Sledge and Senator Allerton passed them as he lighted his cigarette, and he looked after Sledge until the match burned his fingers.

"There is the biggest man I have seen in a long while," he remarked as he sat beside her on the settee.

"They say he is not only the boss of the city, but of the state," replied Molly, very much interested. "You knew that, didn't you?"

"Of course," he acknowledged, "but I scarcely think that would influence my judgment. I have studied a great many men of more power and influence than he has at present, but none of them, so far as I can recollect, seemed to have his elemental force. Wherever he was born, he would have been a leader. He is a wonderful man. Throw him in a savage country and he would be king."

A huge figure approached them. "Hello, Watt," rumbled the deep voice of Sledge. "My dance, Molly."

"Well, you having a good time?" asked Sledge, sitting comfortably in the seat Mr. Watt had just vacated.

"The time of my life," she assured him, with happy animation.

"That's the word," he heartily approved. "If there's anybody here you want just tell Cameron. If he don't trot 'em right over tell me."

"The mayor has been very kind," acknowledged Molly, beginning to wonder.

"He's got his orders," returned Sledge complacently. "Let me see your dance program," and he took it from her lap. "I thought so," he commented. "There's a dark horse turned up, and you didn't get him."

"A dark horse?" she faltered. "A ringer," he explained. "Lord Bunnchase, Andrew Lepton, the big coffee monopolist, sneaked him in here under an alias, and nobody's on." He puzzled over the card a moment. "Excuse me till I fix it," and she stalked away.

Molly sat silently, allowing a cold wave of humiliation slowly to chill her soul. Why, Sledge had carefully prearranged her triumph of the evening. He had assumed control of her dance card and of her succession of delightful tete-a-tetes. He had driven the star performers into her net as if they had been droves of sheep. True, men had sought her a second time of their own accord because of that charm which she knew she possessed—a vaguely understood attractiveness, which was more than beauty, more than cleverness, more than mere sex ing the entire accepted order of creation. She was certain, however, that she could be of more help to Bert after they were married. He was weaker than she had thought.

Very well; Sledge had thrown down the gage of battle. He had laughed when he was threatened and had ruined Bert in challenging defiance. Let him now take the consequences. If he went to the penitentiary, well and good. He had probably sent other people there, with no more qualms of mercy than she would now show to him. She could be as ruthless as he. What was it Professor Watt had called the quality? Elemental force—that was it. Well, she possessed it too. She felt it within her, stirring with the same physical nascency as the virility of parenthood, to which it was so closely allied.

Hard Times.

A gentleman in New Orleans advertised for a man to do chores around the house, and the advertisement was answered by a colored man.

"Are you married?" asked the prospective employer.

"Yas, suh; I's married," replied the applicant, "but mah wife is out of a job. Dat's why I's got to shif' for mahself."

"Before entering a pond or stream a moccasin or other water snake fills himself with wind and"—helpfully began Professor Pate.

thousands of pounds in the course of the year.

When the cause of this loss of money was discovered it was at first suggested that no person who was not actually traveling by the train should be allowed on the platform at all. But even railway directors have hearts, though there seem to be some people who doubt it, and this arrangement seemed altogether too cruel. Finally the idea of charging a penny for admission to the platform was hit upon and adopted. In laudatory parlance of the day "it's a grand success," though the scheme wouldn't work here.

DRESDEN'S FAMOUS CLAY.

Its Value Was Brought to Light by a Freak of Fashion.

Did you know that the discovery of the material which makes translucent chinaware possible was due to the vanity of man—not mankind, which includes woman, but to masculine man? It came about in a remarkably devious manner, beginning and ending a little way from the spot where Dresden china is still manufactured. The man who identified the long sought substance was an eminent chemist, John Frederick Boettcher, but the scientist would never have had the substance to analyze had it not been for the circumstances of a muddy road, the vanity of society beaux and a shrewd business man who thought he had found a profitable means of catering to that vanity.

The man was riding from his iron foundry by a short cut when his horse's hoofs stuck in the mud. That mud next day disintegrated into a fine white powder when it was thoroughly dry. The founder conceived the idea of turning the white clay into powder for the fashionable bob wigs of court dandies. Even the king, Augustus of Saxony, fell for it, but it was not satisfactory, so Augustus ordered the chemist, Boettcher, to analyze it to find if it was injurious. To his amazement the man of science found that this Dresden clay was the same substance that had been used for 1,800 years in China in the making of the ware that had never been imitated anywhere else in the world.

Conal, who was seldom scared at anything, was not alarmed now and answered:

"I want you to help me, for well I know you can."

"And what help do you want?" they asked, for Conal was making a good impression on them, he was so polite.

"I want to learn to play the pipes. I am so stupid I cannot bring from them even one little air. Now, I know you are masters of all kinds of music, so do please help me!" said Conal.

"Well, that means no harm to us!" said the fairies, for they were gratified to see that Conal was only asking a favor.

A HIGHLAND LEGEND.

In the days when fairies lived in the hillocks that rose all through the highlands there lived an old piper who had three sons.

Now, the profession of piping was a most honorable one, and the old piper was very anxious to have all his sons follow in his footsteps and become pipers like himself.

Two of them had no trouble at all in learning, but Conal, his youngest boy, was a great trial to him, for try as he might he couldn't master a single tune, no matter how easy it was.

Poor Conal was very unhappy. One evening he was wandering around, thinking mournfully of his want of skill, when on nearing a green hillock around which he had often played when a little lad he saw that it was open.

Of course Conal knew it was a fairy hill, for every one in the land knew all about the fairies.

Conal also knew just what to do in a case like this, so, taking his knife, he stuck it in the doorway and boldly entered the fairy hall.

The little people were by no means pleased to see a mortal in their own home and crowded around him, angrily demanding:

to see that Conal was only asking a favor.

"Well, well, Conal, you have always been a good boy. You have never scoffed at us, and we'll teach you to play."

So they brought forth a fine set of pipes, and they showed Conal how to use this finger and how to use the other and how to blow his breath and how to hold the pipes.

What a wonderful lesson that was! Soon, very soon, Conal was fingering and drawing forth entrancing melodies as well as the fairies themselves.

It was true ever after. Conal was the finest piper in the whole country, and his fame went abroad even to other lands.

of all kinds of athletics. She has personally superintended the education of her three daughters, Catherine, Helen and Elizabeth. Helen graduated two years ago from Vassar, and next fall Catherine will be a student of Wellesley.

Perhaps the charity that has been of first importance to Mrs. Hughes during the past few years is the woman's evening clinic in Washington, which gives medical advice to working women for a nominal fee.

The friends of Mrs. Hughes, who know her best, speak of her as a splendid representative of American woman, a woman whose home and family have always come first even when her duties as wife of a member of the supreme court were the heaviest. With Mrs. Hughes the fine arts of homemaking are the best. She is proud of her reputation of being an excellent cook.

Mrs. Hughes sews, because to her it is a much more fascinating occupation than bridge, and it has been said that this clear thinking woman, with her steady, quiet eyes, believes that the modestly dressed woman is always sure of being herself, because she is bigger than the dictates and vagaries of every passing fashion.

Footgear.

The shops are put to it these days to keep up with the demand for fanciful sport shoes. Woman has become used to having her feet exquisitely dressed and refuses to don any old shoe for athletics. The country club type of sport shoe is of white washable kid, with trimmings of colored glazed kid in the shape of tip and "saddle," as the shoe salesman calls the curved strip of kid which crosses the toe back of the tip. All white shoes are of washable kid and come in high or low style, the high laced sport shoe with white rubber sole being on the whole smarter than the low Oxford. Still, many women prefer the Oxford, which leaves the ankle free, and the new glazed kid trimmed white Oxfords are very smart indeed.

Sand Toys.

There are some children who will always be satisfied to spend a morning on the beach with only the little tin bucket and shovel or a few old shells.
But there are others, and they are the majority, who want more play toys for the beach or sand pile than merely these. For them there comes a set of wooden blocks, with a hollowed circle on one side, into which is molded a letter of the alphabet. With these molds
a child can pat out on the dampened sand any combination of letters which he likes. These surely rank among the useful toys and are worth purchas-

they possess.

Another toy which will teach a prinpoured to turn the wheel beneath.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

HEART DISEASE.

IN RECENT YEARS the number of cases and deaths from disorders of the heart have markedly increased. In Ontario the ratio of deaths has steadily risen during the last decade, and as a cause of death organic heart disease now heads the list. A certain amount of the increase may be set down to better diagnosis and more accurate statistics, but these facts will hardly account for the remarkable increase during recent years.
What can be done about it? In the first place means must be taken to establish not an early diagnosis but an ORGANIC HEART DISEASE earlier diagnosis. Every man or woman who has reached the age of 40 years should be examined by a physician; and the physician must not, as is sometimes done, slur over the examination and hastily conclude that the symptoms are those of dyspepsia.

What symptoms and signs are the most important in the testing diagnosis of heart disease? Among the most important are weariness, lassitude, and decreased ambition. If these are complained of it should lead the physician to make a most careful examination. Then there may be a tendency towards breath-lessness in hurrying to a street-car, or in going up hill or upstairs, or there may be a sense of tightness or pain in the chest which disappears following a few minutes' rest.

There may or may not be palpitation. Sometimes there is a slight puffiness about the foot tops or the feet are somewhat swollen, and there may be occasional spots or bright lights before the eyes with transient giddiness.
Physical examination may disclose some valvular trouble, or there may be a slight change in the character of the first sound with a slight increase in cardiac dullness or some irregularity in the pulse. The condition of the arteries and pulse must be carefully noted, and the urine should, as in every first examination by the physician, be carefully analyzed. If careful examination denotes some cardiac affection, its early recognition will pave the way for such treatment as will delay or prevent further progress. The prompt and ready detection of heart disease is just as important as the early recognition of tuberculosis. By detecting it in the early stage it is usually possible, by proper diet, exercise, and regulation of work, to add years or decades of useful activity to one's life.

Twelve miles up Dufferin street from the City of Toronto, on the banks of the circuitous Don River is a pretty stretch of broken land, comprising some fifty acres, is the site of the Connaught Laboratories which are destined to be a bright spot in the future public health history of this fair Province. As soon as the buildings, now in course of construction, are completed all the various serums in use at the present time in the prevention of disease will be manufactured here. The rolling pastures will accommodate the horses necessary for the blood serum used in the preparation of diphtheria and tetanus antitoxins and of anti-meningitis serum. Here, too, will be prepared smallpox vaccine and Pasteur preventive treatment of rabies. The land and buildings necessary for this purpose are a gift from Colonel Albert Gooderham to the Provincial University, which makes and supplies these products for the Provincial Board of Health, and which are in turn supplied by the Board free of cost to the people of the Province. No better work is being done for the public anywhere in the civilized world, and the Board is much gratified by the numerous letters and words of appreciation of this enterprise which come from the medical profession and the people of Ontario. The generous gift of Colonel Gooderham, it is hoped, will be but the beginning of a series of similar gifts to public health work in Ontario, which can only be successfully carried out by money, which after all judiciously used is the chief factor in the prevention of disease.

4.—Fleas. J.S.G., Hamilton.

Q.—Do fleas carry disease of any kind? If so, how may they be got rid of?

A.—Fleas carry a disease known as bubonic plague from rats, squirrels and other small animals. This disease is unknown in Canada.

Fleas may be destroyed by dusting fresh Pyrethrum powder into the seams of the clothing or by dusting the powder over the body. The floors of rooms should be washed with a solution of 5 per cent. cresol and 20 per cent. soft soap in water.

Barned Burned.

Mrs. T. B. Lund, Kingston Road, met with a serious loss on Friday evening last, when her large barn, containing her season's crops, machinery, two horses, some pigs and poultry were badly destroyed by fire. Mrs. Lund had completed the evening's work a few minutes before the barn was discovered on fire. Willing hands soon arrived to try and rescue the property, and some tools and stock were saved. A bucket brigade, by some hard work, saved the house from a similar fate. Mrs. Lund had some insurance, but not nearly enough to cover her loss.

Hinchey—Carroll.

Once again the beautiful toned bell of St. John the Evangelist church at Enterprise, rang out the joyful news of a wedding on Wednesday afternoon, when William N. Hinchey, of Tamworth, married Flossie Maud Carroll, of Enterprise. Only immediate friends were present and Rev. Rural Dean Jones officiated. The bride was charmingly gowned in grey silk with panama hat, and looked very pretty indeed. Her travelling dress was navy blue serge. After the ceremony, the happy couple motored to Reidville, when they took the C.P.R. train for Toronto and Niagara Falls. On their return the will reside upon the Hinchey homestead near Tamworth. The wedding presents were numerous, costly and useful. A host of friends wish the popular young couple bon voyage through life together.

Lennox County Fair—September 12-13.

This should be the greatest fair in the history of the Society. If an incentive were needed to make it such, it is present in the desire of the members of the Society to increase the fair's scope by removing next year to the Napanee Driving Park. That splendid park, with its superb track, is an ideal spot for a fair ground. Here, with suitable buildings, "Lennox Fair" could be made second to none in this province. All that is needed to make this work an accomplished fact, in the very near future, is the hearty co-operation of the citizens of Napanee and the surrounding country, for an increase in membership, is requested by the management of the society and the public should, by a spontaneous movement, respond to that request at once by at least trebling the present membership. Several new features will be in evidence in this year's display at the fair. With the largely increased attendance, which is expected, and a stronger membership, the financial position of the society would be so strengthened that the officers would confidently hope to make arrangements this fall for removal to the new grounds. Let all put their shoulders to the wheel during the next few days and roll up a big membership in our county fair.

AUTO ACCIDENT.

Six soldiers from Barrfield camp
had a miraculous escape from death on Thursday night of last week, when they were thrown out of an automobile on a bridge near the farm of Mr.
Edward Kaylor, Morven. The car was travelling at a lively rate of speed, and was in the act of crossing a bridge when it swerved to one side.
The chauffeur did his best to right the car when it swerved for a second time and crashed into the side of the bridge. The six soldiers were thrown out, two of them alighting in a tree alongside of the road, and they had presence of mind to hang on to one of the limbs and thereby saved themselves a bad fall. The other four were thrown in the water, but were able to get out. Two of the khaki-clad men received such a severe shaking up that they were forced to remain at
Mr. Kaylor's home over night.
